For the Daily State Sentinel. In consequence of the Irish American citizens of Lafayette and other places throughout the States being engaged in soliciting aid from the patriotic and benevolent citizens of all classes, it is confidently hoped and expected that the generous citizens of Indianapolis will be second to none in their gratitude to a people who never wronged them. The following is the circular: A VOICE FROM INDIANA IN BEHALF OF THE STAR-

Fellow-Countrymen:—In appealing to you, in particular, who dwell in the great Metropolis of the West, containing, as it is said, forty thousand of our people: we disclaim any spirit of die tation, or any feeling, save, that of the most kind-Iv nature in behalf of our suffering brethren. across the Atlantic. It has been told us that you meet in "formida ble array" on each celebration of our National Festival; and, that, having paraded the streets of Chicago, in great numbers, with banners display ed, and martial music, you wind up the day with Festive Enjoyments; and thus fondly flatter yourselves, that this, your day, was a great one for Ireland; and that you have discharged all your duties to the land that bore you.

We do not write to remind you that St. Patrick's day, as marking that epoch when the light of faith first beemed on our Pagan ancestors, should be spent by us all in devout thanksgiving. This is not our province, for your Prelates, who speak to you the word of God, do teach you the your duty on this head.

But what we do remonstrate with you for and beg of you to discontinue, is, that pomp and show of public parades, whilst our Country is a spectacle of enslaved degradation to the Nations of the Earth. Never was such display more upseemly, never more uncalled for, never more unnatural than at the present time, when we hear, borne by wintry winds, across the Atlantic Ocean, the cries of our starving brethren! For alas! there is upon them now a double famine, a famme of food and famine of fuel.

We appeal to you, then, to devote to the relief of your suffering brethren what you may spend on the approaching celebration of St. Patrick's Let each man give the fruits of a day's toil, every girl a week's wages, and let this be handed to your good Bishop, to be forwarded by him to Ireland. And what is done in Chicago, let it be done in every State and in every Diocese throughout the country, and next St. Patrick's Day will be truly a great day for Ireland. By acting thus, we will save to a great extent the remnant of our people, for if this famine should sweep over the land, unchecked, by the large and generous hand of charity, the Saxon programme will be carried out, and the Celtic race extinguished or absorbed as it has been in Scotland.

Fourteen centuries ago the Irish people in their spiritual necessity stretched out their hands to our Great Apostle to come to their aid-the same people are now stretching out their hands to us in their temporal calamities for relief. Shall we shut our ears to their agonizing cries? Shall we remain insensible to the sufferings of those of our own lesh and blood? Forbid it all that is sacred in our holy Religion-Forbid it all that is enobling in our common human nature!

As promptitude in affording relief is double charity, let our offerings be promptly given to our Bishops, and as promptly forwarded by them to the Most Reverend John McHale, Archbishop of Tuam, who with all due respect is constituted General Almoner for the charities sent from this country, and let them be distributed by him in the various necessitous Dioceses and countries.
